

TEACHING ABOUT RELIGION
(And Teaching of Ethics)

Religious education is the responsibility of the home and church and within our schools shall remain the free choice of the individual, true to our American heritage and Constitution.

However, religion influences many areas of education, such as literature and history, and its role in our civilization can, and should, be taught without bias or proselytization.

This is not meant to restrict the teaching of religious heritage in the historical context.

Adopted: Date of Manual Adoption

Revised: December 2000

Anita\policy\IHAL